THE UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA STAFF BULLETIN

EDMONTON, ALBERTA

JANUARY 25, 1973

THERE WERE NO COMMITTEES BUT THINGS STILL GOT DONE

Anyone familiar with the early history of the University knows that Henry Marshall Tory, first President, didn't hesitate to use whatever powers of persuasion were necessary to get what and who he wanted for this institution. Fortunately for those who were students then, and for those who have followed since, Dr. Tory rarely accepted "no" for an answer.

One of his early recruits was HARRY BULYEA, a Nova Scotian who came to Edmonton in 1915 to practice orthodontia and later founded what is now the Faculty of Dentistry. Among Dr. Bulyea's patients during the winter of 1919 was Dr. Tory. Dr. Bulyea did the necessary work on the President's teeth, and a few days later the President phoned him with a request.

"At that time," recalls Dr. Bulyea, "there were three dental students enrolled at the University but they were taking courses in the Faculty of Medicine because there was no Faculty of Dentistry. They expected to be able to transfer to Toronto or McGill, even though they were receiving no practical training in dentistry.

"Dr. Tory asked me to take over the instruction of those three students. I hedged a bit; he said not to make up my mind until he had discussed it further with me."

Well, Dr. Tory went to work in true form ("He made me feel it was my duty to accept") and Dr. Bulyea finally agreed to teach the students for the remainder of the 1919-1920 session. He didn't want a University appointment, but he would help out. The story repeated itself the following year. In the spring of 1921, Dr. Bulyea was summoned to Dr. Tory's office and was asked if he had enjoyed his teaching experience.

"I made the mistake of answering in the affirmative without a moment's hesitation, so there was no way out when Dr. Tory asked me to teach on a permanent basis. I still had my doubts, of course, but I accepted."

A short time later the full four-year course in Dentistry was instituted, and the first class was graduated in 1927. Three years later a School of Dentistry was officially established, with Dr. Bulyea as Director. Classes and laboratory training sessions were being held in the New Medical Building (later called the Med Sci Building and now the Dentistry-Pharmacy Centre).

The sun was still high over the Medical Building when Dr. Bulyea walked over to the Arts Building one day to keep an appointment with the President. He was going to ask for some new equipment, and he had a list of arguments a mile long to use if Dr. Tory said no.

"I made the request, then just stood there in a horrible silence because Dr. Tory wasn't answering me. Finally, when he did speak, he didn't mention the new equipment at all. Instead, he said it was time I was given a raise because I hadn't received a single increment since I'd begun teaching."

Dr. Bulyea inquired if there was enough money in the budget to cover both.

"No."

"Then give me the equipment."

"I was being tested. Dr. Tory knew I needed that equipment. He just wanted to know how badly I wanted it. Later, when there was money, I got the increment."

The trait of putting the University before himself stood Dr. Bulyea in good stead for the 22 years he was associated with Dentistry. The excellent training he had received at the Harvard School of Dentistry was only a part of what he passed on to his students. By being humble, he taught them humility: "I've never taught before, so you men will have to help me out." By being proud, he taught them honesty: "I understand there are some whisperings going on around here. If anyone has any doubts about my professional ability, let him speak them to my face and I will prove him wrong."

When he retired from the University in 1942, determined to maintain his contacts with former and present students, Dr. Bulyea's first step was to fill in at a dental office in Lamont while one of his former students was serving in the Royal Canadian Dental Corps. He kept the practice going until the student's return, then went on to a retirement packed with mountain climbing, painting, jewelry-making, photography, and ice skating.

Dr. Bulyea marked his 100th birthday January 14 and was honored, the preceding day, at a celebration arranged by the Faculty of Dentistry. Although his visits to the campus are rare, he still welcomes friends into the neat white frame home on University Avenue where he slouches into the corner of an armchair, swings his leg casually over the arm, and launches into the University chronology to which he has been a colorful and important contributor.

3. Two-way traffic, north from 91 Avenue, to turn around using 92 Avenue entrances
4. Service and emergency vehicles only will be allowed onto campus via the 92 Avenue entrances
5. Signs have been posted re parking etc.

SPACE AGE ARTIST

Canadian-born artist ANDRE FONTAINE has won world-wide recognition as the originator of an art school known as "cosmonitic art," a presentation of which is to be made in SUB Art Gallery beginning January 29 (see "This Week and Next").

André Fontaine, a native of Quebec, has studied futuristic art with Jackson Pollock, Le Corbusier, Fresco, and other schools of art. In 1963 he perfected a revolutionary medium in the artistic field known as "Texmos"—a fluorescent fibreglass medium—which gave birth to "cosmonitic art."

UNIVERSITY KINDERGARTEN

Beginning this month, the Department of Elementary Education Kindergarten will be including four-year-olds in their program. Children must be four by the end of February and live in Windsor Park, Belgravia, Garneau, or McKernan. Four-year-olds will be taken for the afternoon session only, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. For further information, telephone JANIS BLAKEY, 432-5428.

USED BOOKS WANTED

Used books and records are required for a sale to be held January 31, the proceeds of which are to go towards support of Canadian University Services Overseas (CUSO). Deliveries should be made to the Foreign Student Office, Room 2-5 University Hall by January 29.

STUDIO THEATRE TO PRESENT CHEKOV

Chekov's The Seagull is in rehearsal and will open February 8 at the Studio Theatre. It will play nightly at 8:30 p.m. until February 17, with matinee performances on Saturdays, February 10 and 17 at 2:30 p.m. The box office in Corbett Hall will open Thursday, February 1.

The cast is directed by MARK SCHOENBERG, Associate Professor of Drama, and settings and costumes are designed by GWEN KEATLEY.

RAVI SHANKAR TO PERFORM HERE

Indian sitar player RAVI SHANKAR is to visit Edmonton next month. He will be giving one performance at the Jubilee Auditorium on February 14 at 8 p.m., accompanied by ALLAH KHAN on the tabla.

Tickets may be obtained from the Information Desk in the Students' Union Building and at all Woodward's Stores. They are priced at $5.75; $4.75; and $3.75.

CONFERENCE ON SHORTER WORK WEEK

S. M. A. HAMEED, Professor of Business Administration and Commerce; G. S. PAUL, Assistant Professor of Sociology; and C. M. LOCKWOOD, Assistant Director of Extension, have received a grant of $7,000 from the Canada Council to organize a national conference on a "Three or four day work week" (May 14, 15, and 16, 1973). Interested individuals may contact the organizers.

The Faculty Women's Club invites female members of the faculty and wives of faculty members to join one or more of the various interest groups sponsored by the club. For further information telephone KAY QUON at 435-6735.

CREDIT UNION ANNUAL MEETING

The Annual General Meeting of The University of Alberta Employees' Savings and Credit Union will be held on Tuesday, February 20 at 4:45 p.m., in Room 235 of the Central Academic Building.

EXTENSION COURSES

Problems encountered by new or prospective landowners of small acreages and suburban farms will be examined in a six-week course, "Rural life: an introduction" being offered by the Department of Extension. The course, which begins February 6, will emphasize the social conflicts of rural-urban living, municipal government and land development planning, rights and responsibilities of the landowner, and the problems of house building, financing, etc., in developing a site.

Class hours will be from 7:30 to 10 p.m. for six Tuesdays. The fee is $25.

An evening forum on capital gains and registered retirement savings plans will be held February 5, for those who wish to avoid paying unnecessary income taxes. Topics under discussion will be personal income taxes, real estate, small privately-owned businesses, functions of trust companies, types of registered retirement plans, use of stocks in a self-administered plan, and types of investments. The fee for the forum is $5 per person, or $8 for husband and wife. The forum begins at 7 p.m.

Registrations for the courses above are being accepted at the Department of Extension, Corbett Hall, 432-5061 during the day, or 432-3116 after 4:30 p.m.
